“Check the Binder” Reminder Card

Print once a year (or once ever, for many years). One honest hour a year keeps this kit real.

Your once-a-year hour

- [ ] Walk room by room with the log sheet. Add anything new. Cross out anything gone.
- [ ] Snap fresh phone photos of the big-ticket items and any new purchases.
- [ ] Re-check serial numbers that changed (upgraded laptop? new bike? new TV?).
- [ ] Peel off any receipts that don't matter anymore — recycle without guilt.
- [ ] Double-check phone numbers on the Policy & Contacts page. Agents retire; companies merge.
- [ ] Confirm a trusted person still knows where the binder lives.

Cut along the box, fold in half, and it’s a wallet- or calendar-sized card. Or don't cut — sticking the whole page on the fridge works beautifully too.

Yearly check-in log

Date you did your hour, and one line on what changed:

Year	Date done	What changed (new sofa? paid off the mortgage? new expert to call?)

Friendly tip: Honest self-talk beats perfection. A binder updated three out of every five years is still far better than no binder at all. Miss a year? Just do the hour now. That's the whole system.
